CITY MAY BATHE IN ICE WATER

Assurance is Given at Local Factory That There is no Danger of Famine.

PLANT RUNS 24 HOURS A DAY

Cream and Milk Shortage is Reported at Local Soda Fountain—
May be Serious.

While New Castle, Connersville and other cities in this vicinity are suffering from an ice famine and one is impending in other cities, Rushville is going on sublimely with no thought of such a thing even if the temperature rises to 110 in the shade. In fact it is assured that Rushville may bathe in ice water if it so sees fit and still the supply will not be exhausted.

Information from the Innis, Pearce & Company factory, the only source of ice supply in Rushville, is to the effect that everyone who has wanted ice during the period of warm weather has been supplied. The ice wagons have been late due to the fact that there have been so many calls for it, but the information is given out at the office that no one has been refused up to the present time.

The plant is running twenty-four hours a day and is going the limit on the output. If the hot weather continues there is no way to predict what might result, but again there is every reason to believe that the Innis, Pearce & Company plant has the capacity to supply the demands of Rushville people.

Fearing that their supply would run short a car load of ice was shipped in from another point a few days ago. That has been used and in case the plant could not supply the demand, it is thought that more ice could be obtained from other places.

The soda fountains are facing a cream and milk famine. The Greek candy kitchen has experienced the most difficulty in buying both. They have several milk men and still can not get enough. They get cream from Richmond and last week received some from a city in Ohio. The manager went to Morristown this morning to see if it would be possible to contract for cream from the plant there.

The Caron candy kitchen has no use for cream as their ice cream supply is obtained at New Castle, where an ice famine is impending. So far it has not affected the local store and is not expected to.

At the Darnell & Goddard bakery some trouble has been experienced in buying cream to make their ice cream. The owners say that the flies are so bad and the pasture is getting so poor that the cows do not give as much milk as they did. That is the reason given for the shortage. It was said at that store today that the famine would assume a serious aspect if the shortage became any greater than it is at present.

A moisture, gas, and even explosion proof telephone for use in mines has been invented.

FIRST NEW WHEAT HERE.

The first new wheat hauled to this city was unloaded at the Hinkle & Company elevator late last evening. It came from the Smelser farm, where the crop will not average over thirteen bushels. Although the yield is very low, the grain is of a very high quality. It graded number two and weighed sixty pounds to the bushel.

KICKS BUGGY TO PIECES

Horse, Foiled in Attempt to Run, Works With Its Heels.

While Mr. and Mrs. Lon Kerriek, living near the Decatur-Rush county line, were driving to Clarksburg yesterday, their horse became frightened at a hay loader in an adjoining field and attempted to run away. Foiled in that, when Mr. Kerriek held it, the horse stopped and worked effectively with its heels. The buggy was torn up but both occupants of the buggy escaped uninjured by jumping from the vehicle. Mrs. Kerriek suffered a nervous collapse from the fright and was treated by a physician after arriving in Clarksburg.

CLAIMED MATNEY OWED HIM DOLLAR

Frank Smith Refused to Give Any Change to Glenwood Man Last Evening.

WAS RELEASED BY OFFICER

Lige Matney of near Glenwood was a near victim of the short change racket here yesterday evening. He had eaten at the Hite restaurant in Morgan street and in payment for his meal threw $1.15 on the counter expecting Frank Smith, the clerk to take out the correct amount. Smith picked up the dollar and offered no change. Matney demanded his money and Smith told him he was keeping it for what Matney owed him five years ago as a farm hand. Matney declared he had never seen Smith and swore out a warrant for his arrest. Policeman McAllister found Smith at the restaurant and rather than go to jail he gave back the money. Matney did not wish to have him prosecuted so affected a settlement.

MERCHANTS MEET TONIGHT

Will Hold First Regular Session of the Month.

The Merchants Association will hold their first regular meeting of July tonight in the assembly room of the court house at 7:30 o'clock. It is expected that several matters of importance will come before the meeting and a large attendance is desired. Among other things the reports of the various "Big Wednesday" committees will be given and the date for the next "Big Wednesday" may be set.

SITS IN STREET ALL NIGHT

Wash Allen is Silent Watchman Over Jewelry Stock.

Stragglers—and staggerers—wending their way home late at night may see a silent watchman sitting peacefully in a chair out in the street at the corner of Main and Third streets. The watchman, it will not be necessary to inquire, is Wash Allen of the Kennard jewelry store. A new front is being installed and, rather than put up a front each night that will keep burglars from the stock, Mr. Allen stations himself in front of the store and sits there until the sun peeps over the horizon. The new front promises to materially help the appearance of the building.

BELIEVED TO BE THE SAME FORGER

Thought Fraudulent Check Writer
Arrested in New Castle is One Who Worked Here.

DESCRIPTION FITS EXACTLY

Police There Believe They Have a Crook With Past Record—Miserable Failure Here.

The police here are inclined to believe that a stranger, giving his name as Edward Neece, who was arrested in New Castle Monday evening for attempting to pass a fraudulent check there, is the same individual who made the same attempt here on Sunday afternoon at the Lytle drug store. The stranger escaped Sunday before the police were notified and left on an eastbound I. & C. traction car for Connersville.

The stranger asked for fifty cents worth of perfume and presented a check on John Osborne, a farmer living near here, which was made payable to and endorsed with the name Frank McColey, who is a farm laborer at Osborne's. While Mr. Lytle was calling the Osborne home by telephone to see if the check for that amount had been issued to McColey, the stranger disappeared. It was plainly noticeable that the signature, endorsement and other writing on the check was made by the same hand. The description of the stranger exactly answers that of the man arrested in New Castle. The Courier says:

Edward Neece, who refused to give his place of residence, and who is believed to be a crook of great lustre, is an inmate of the county jail, as the result of an attempt to pass a fraudulent check Monday night. Neece was arrested by Assistant Chief of Police Mogul at the Office saloon where he attempted the unlawful act.

When taken into custody Neece tore up other checks and dropped them on the street. They were later picked up and turned over to the police. The various checks were made payable to Edward Bryant and were signed by J. Neece, E. Neece and J. Jennings. They all called for $6 and were written on blanks from the Citizens State bank.

Neece's operations began after the banks were closed for the vacation that would extend over the Fourth, and which would have given him ample time to get away had he been successful. One of the checks was number 4765. All were written in the same hand.

Neece refused to talk when brought into the police headquarters. He would not give his address, occupation or age. He is a young man, probably twenty-six years of age. Wednesday morning an affidavit, charging the issuance of a fraudulent check was filed against him in the circuit court. He will be held in jail until the next term of court unless he gives bond.

NEW SERIAL STORY.

A new serial story, "The Lash of Circumstances" is started in the Daily Republican today and the first installment will be found on page six. The enthralling novel is by Harry Irving Greene, a recognized author. It concerns the theft of forty thousand dollars and the reader is held in suspense in the denouement explain all of the mysteries of the unusual events.

PLAN TO MOVE THE TABERNACLE

Chautauqua Directors Meet and a Committee is Named to Take Charge of That Work.

THEY HOLD A SHORT SESSION

Managers Optimistic Over Prospects For Coming Assembly—Make Plans For Advertising.

At a meeting of the directors of the Chautauqua Association in Watson, Tittsworth & Green's offices this morning enthusiasm was apparent and the opinion prevailed that this year's assembly would far excel any previous one. The purpose of the meeting was to arrange for the removal of the tabernacle from the Mull lot to the city park. It will be remembered that the association purchased the building from the revival committee last week.

At the beginning of the meeting the question of tearing down, moving and erecting the tabernacle again was brought up. It was the consensus of opinion of the directors present that a committee should be named to take complete charge of the work. T. M. Green as chairman, Earl Payne and Dr. C. H. Parsons were appointed as the committee and were given complete power to act.

The committee held a brief meeting after the directors adjourned but no definite plan was decided on. It is not known yet just what methods will be used to employ help to tear down the tabernacle and have it built at the city park for permanent use for the chautauqua. The action of the committee will not be delayed and definite plans will be announced in a few days.

At the directors' session it was pointed out that there was not enough funds to the credit of the association to carry on the work and it was moved, seconded and carried unanimously to borrow enough money to employ the necessary labor.

It is thought that permission will be granted at the postponed meeting of the council tomorrow night to erect the tabernacle on the city's property. It is said that there will be no opposition among the members of the council to the erection of the building for permanent use.

If plans are carried out the "flying squadron" will be used again this year in advertising the chautauqua, according to F. E. Wolcott, secretary of the advertising committee. He reported at the meeting that an effort would be made to make the advertising a feature this year. The "flying squadron" has proved to be one of the most effective methods of placing the beauties of the annual assembly before the public. A number of special invitations will be printed to be sent out to individuals and many other methods of advertising are being planned. The programs for the assembly will be issued from the press in a few weeks as work has already been started on them.

THE WEATHER

Showers tonight or Friday. Cooler tonight and in south portion Friday.

PROSTRATED BY THE HEAT.

Fred Snyder of St. Paul, employed by Bert Palmer near St. Paul, was prostrated by the excessive heat while mowing hay at the Palmer farm. A physician was called and he was in a critical condition for a time. He is now improved to such a degree that it is thought that his recovery is certain.

RUSHVILLE MEN HELD

Suspects Are Later Released by the Police at Columbus.

Sheriff Miller picked up two men, who said they were from Rushville, Wednesday morning as one of them answered almost exactly the description of one of the men wanted for robbing Ben Repp of $290 on an interurban car here recently, says the Columbus Republican. The sheriff took the two men before Repp, who looked them over closely and then announced that neither filled the description of the men who helped rob him. The suspects were then released.

MANY RUMORS AS TO CHIEF OF POLICE

John Kelley Positively Denies That He is After the Job and Will Not Take it.

POSITION WANTED BY OTHERS

There has been much speculation as to who the new chief of police is to be. Mayor Black has not made public his selection and as a result rumors can be heard on all sides. John Kelley, the present street commissioner, seems to be a favorite with the "dopesters," who have had him as good as appointed. When seen today Mr. Kelley stated positively that he was not a candidate for the job and furthermore would not take the position if offered him. "I have heard all this talk about me going to be the next chief," said Mr. Kelley, but I am not after the job and would hand it back to them if they were to give it to me."

Rumors also has it that Sam Morgan was to get the place but it is said Mr. Morgan would not accept. Then again it is said that one of the two policeman would be advanced to the position of chief but this cannot be confirmed.

STIERS BROTHERS TAKE A BIG PART

Earl Stiers is Good Point Winner in Track and Field Meet at New Castle.

CHARLES GETS A HOME RUN

Earl and Charles Stiers, who resided in Rushville all their life until a few years ago when they moved to New Castle, were prominent in athletic events on the Fourth of July. Charles Stiers played center field on the Maxwell team and clouted the ball for four bags in his only hit of the game. New Castle won from Connersville.

Earl Stiers, who is acting as athletic director in the Maxwell-Brisco Company's gymnasium in New Castle was the second best point winner at the track and field meet at the Maxwell athletic park. He won points in the following events: shot put, second; 120 yard hurdle, first; 100 yard dash, second; broad jump, first; discus throw, second; 220 yard dash, first; 220 yard low hurdles, first. He gained much of his experience in track work while a student at Wabash College in Crawfordsville.

There will be preaching tonight and Friday night at the United Presbyterian church preparatory to the communion services of Sunday.

UNCLE SAM MUST BE WRONG AGAIN

Count Made in 'Preparing Directory
Contents-Shows Population to be 5,716.

WORK IS CAREFULLY DONE

Counting Suburbs, Number of People is near 6,000—Far Above Census Report.

More evidence against Uncle Sam. It might be possible to make the United States census bureau out a base falsifier, when, on top of all other proofs that the last census for Rushville was not correct, another count is made which shows that the population of Rushville and suburbs is approximately six thousand. This estimate is believed to be nearer correct than any which has yet been made.

The Daily Jacksonian has counted noses while preparing the contents of a directory, which is about to be published. John Gantner, who has been canvassing the city, has found that there are five thousand seven hundred and sixteen people living within the corporate limits of Rushville. This is far above the report of the government census which gave Rushville only four thousand nine hundred and twenty seven.

The small suburbs near Rushville have also been included by the canvasser, such as Jersey City, Belmont, Brookside and other small neighborhoods which have not been taken into the city limits. It was found that there are two hundred and sixty-seven in the suburbs, which makes a total of five thousand, nine hundred and eighty-three.

There has always been the belief that the government census was in error. A count was made by the city letter carriers and the population was found to be several hundred more than the official count gave. Other estimates have been made to show that the census bureau was wrong.

The Jacksonian has endeavored to make a correct count and it is requested by that paper that persons who know that they have been missed or know some one who was missed, notify the paper at once so that the directory will be as near correct as possible.

RELIEF PROMISED FROM HOT SPELL

Weather Bureau Says Oppressive Heat Will be Broken by Thunderstorms.

SOUTHERN BREEZE HELPED

Bulletins from the weather bureau promise relief from the oppressive heat of the last few days. Cooler weather is booked to follow after local thunderstorms tonight and the break in the torrid spell is expected to be general. Southern breezes helped break the heat today, but even at that it was some warm. Thermometers in the business district registered from 96 to 99 degrees while one thermometer which the sun had not touched all day showed 94 degrees. Relief from the hot spell will be welcomed in this city and county.

How They Spent Their Pleasant Summer Outing

"Where," asked the caller, in conventionally polite interest, "are you going for the summer?"

The effect on her host was electrical. She sat bolt upright, dropped the tea pot with a bang and echoed, "Going! We're not going—we're staying!"

"My Goodness!" gasped the caller. "Excuse me for mentioning it if it's a tender subject!"

"It's not tender," said her hostess energetically. "It's worse—it's an impossible subject!" We went away last summer, and that's the reason.

"The Tunnills announced that they were going to Europe and said that if we'd occupy their big place across the lake for the season and see that the servants didn't fight and that the cows didn't eat up the garden we'd make them our debtors for life. They finally let us pay them a ridiculously small rental, and then we abandoned ourselves to dreams of one perfect summer.

"We stored our furniture when the lease expired in May and rushed headlong to our doom. We thought it was a paradise on earth toward which we were flying, and maybe it would have been if the cook and the maid and the man of all work at the place hadn't decided that since their real family was gone this would be a nice time to run home to the old country for a visit. And they went two days after we came. They looked us over in a cold and critical way and disapproved of us and departed.

"We got lots of exercise before—we found help. Tom used to arise at 4 to weed the garden and I got up at the same time to feed the chickens, turn one of automatic pumps, get breakfast and superintend Tom's milking.

"He was kicked through the barn door only twice and we considered that the record was pretty good for a greenhorn. He had some minor mishaps, like poking back all the beans when they came up, pushing the seed ahead of them, and training the potato vines up on strings instead of the peas, but troubles didn't really start till later.

"One day we were sitting in the flower garden having lunch and I told Doty, aged 4, to go indoors for something. We watched her disappear into the house and then Tom said: "Could anything be more peaceful or inspiring than this perfect?" And I responded in similar blank verse.

"Just then the neighbor whose cottage was on the lake shore came tearing around the corner of our house.

"She started at us as though we annoyed her. 'Aren't you folks in bathing?' she inquired. 'Well, somebody out in front, and I thought—'

"Tom and I did a footrace to the lake and she fished Doty out of the water unconscious and black in the face. That child had marched in at the back door of the house and as promptly marched out through the front door and proceeded to take a paddle by herself in the lake, inspired by some unaccountable juvenile impulse.

"Doty came out of her trance in two hours, but during that time I got ten gray hairs and Tom's nervous system was permanently shattered. "It was a couple of weeks later that Doty and Tom, Jr., were taken seriously ill. The doctor murmured something amount defective drains. There was a blur of trained nurses and horrors for a time and then the smoke of battle cleared away.

"Meanwhile the cows had eaten that part of the garden that had not dried up for lack of attention and the chickens were laying eggs all over the country. The Tunnills never did get them back.

"They'd send us post cards from Europe saying, 'We saw this today. Hope you are enjoying life at the dear-old home.' This while I was burning fumigating candles. Or, 'We came down this river today. How you must be enjoying the garden green things.' That came the day the cows ate the last of the green corn, we had expected to use ourselves.

"A little while later Tom dropped a flat iron on his foot and blood poisoning set in. Then the Tunnills sent a lovely card saying, 'We can just imagine you doing the five-mile walk through Elm lane and the woods. We envy you.'

"The worst of all was that the family sent Tom's pretty and harmonious sister Nell to us so that she'd forget the ineligible man she was trying to get engaged to. I produced all the young men at the hotel and several village lights to distract her, and so perfectly did I succeed that she eloped with a college boy who was running a launch to pay his summer expenses. As the family was saving up a millionaire for Nell when she should have come to her senses they still feel hard toward me, and say I should have had more sense.

"When we came back to town in the fall all the good flats were taken and the moths had got into our rugs, and color, and Tom was a dispeptic old grouch. It's taken all winter to get Doty and Tom, Jr., civilized again, and on the whole we've concluded that the family will be better off if it denies itself the strain of a summer vacation. We're going to stick right here!"

"It does sound safer," admitted the caller.

USED AS A LADDER

Says Nat Goodwin Telling of Life With Maxine Elliott.

Los Angeles, July 6.—Nat Goodwin has given out a portion of his book about his matrimonial experiences. Much of it relates to Maxine Elliott, his "wife No. 3." Part of it follows: "Here was the ambition of a Cleopatra. She used me as a ladder to reach her goal, and found her crowning glory in the blinding glare of a myriad of incandescent lights that spelled her name over the portals of a New York theater.

"She was one of the cleverest women I ever met. Her dignity was that of a Joan of Arc; her demeanor Nero-like in the assertive qualities, and yet with channels of emotion that manifested womanhood in the truest sense of the word."

DOOR JAMMED; MEN ROASTED

Men Caught In Fire In Packing Plant.

New Orleans, July 6.—Roasting slowly to death in the big refrigerator of the National Packing company, which was partially destroyed by fire, two engineers from within their almost airtight and soundproof cage, signalled to their would-be rescuers how to direct their efforts. The men tapped upon the place where the walls of the refrigerator were thinnest, but their efforts were vain, and they staggered out dying when the door finally was burst open.

The men were John Corwin, chief engineer of the Armour packing plant here, and Fred Becker, chief engineer of the National plant. Corwin had been called in to help Becker locate a supposed defect in the ammonia tubes when the explosion occurred. It jammed a door so that the fastenings would not work.

Excess Pension Collections. Lafayette, Ind., July 6.—The quarterly report of the state soldiers' home here, shows $46.10 collected in excess pensions from the inmates of the home under the new state law, for the quarter ending June 30. Their action controls your health. Read what Foley Kidney Pills have done for your neighbor. W. H. Applegate of Shelbyville, Ind., says that "I have long been troubled with kidney trouble and for the past few years it has been of a far more serious nature and caused me much worry. My limbs were all swollen up with rheumatism. My back pained me terribly, so that I could hardly get around and my kidneys were very weak and made me get up several times each night. I then started taking Foley Kidney Pills and they built my kidneys right up, giving them strength and causing them to act naturally. I am never bothered now with getting up at night and the swelling and rheumatism in my limbs has entirely left and I feel like a new man. I can safely recommend Foley Kidney Pills as the quickest and best cure for kidney and bladder trouble that I know of." F. B. Johnson Particularly the Ladies.

Not only pleasant and refreshing to the taste, but gently cleansing and sweetening to the system, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is particularly adapted to ladies and children, and beneficial in all cases in which a wholesome, strengthening and effective laxative should be used. It is perfectly safe at all times and dispels colds, headaches and the pains caused by indigestion and constipation so promptly and effectively that it is the one perfect family laxative which gives satisfaction to all and is recommended by millions of families who have used it and who have personal knowledge of its excellence.

Its wonderful popularity, however, has led unscrupulous dealers to offer imitations which act unsatisfactorily. A pretty home wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McDaniel Thursday night at 8:30 when their oldest daughter, Ruby, was united in marriage to Byron Retherford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Retherford of near Carthage. The Elder E. M. Thomas of Danville performed the ceremony in the presence of eighty guests. The bride was dressed in a dainty white marquisette with trimmings of lace insertion. The color scheme was pink and white throughout the house. The bride couple stood beneath an archway of pink and white with a background of ferns arranged on the front porch for the ceremony. Miss Ruby Kirkham played the wedding march and "Hearts and Flowers" during the ceremony. Mrs. Tosso Behr, an aunt of the bride sang "The Life Road." Misses Bertha and Ruby Kirkham and Miss Myrtle McBride rendered several selections on the piano. The bride's table was decorated with sweet peas, and the refreshments were in pink and white, carrying out the color scheme. A number of handsome presents, consisting of linen, china, cut glass and silver were received. The bride is a school teacher and a former student of Earlham, and the bridegroom is an enterprising young farmer. They will go to housekeeping on a farm east of Carthage. The best wishes of a host of friends go with them on their journey through life.

One of the most enjoyable meetings of the Ogden W. C. T. U. was held with Mrs. Gertrude Moffatt June 28. The meeting was reminiscent of "ye olden times" and several of our members lived up to the occasion. Some looked as if they had stepped from an old-time daguerrotype, one costume worn being a century old and another more than half that. Several Quaker bonnets and dainty caps were worn. Our president, Mrs. Ida Byrket called the meeting to order. Devotions were conducted by Mrs. Sarah Moffatt. Thirteen members responded to roll call with old time maxims. The program for the afternoon consisted of a reading from an old book by Mrs. Ida Byrket, describing old-time farming. Mrs. Estella Elliott read a good piece entitled "Honoring God in Suffering." In the absence of Mrs. Almira Moffatt her daughter, Miss Carrie, read "Keeping held with Mrs. Sarah Moffatt in July. During the social hour two-course refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Miss Elsie Frints, Miss Carrie Moffatt and Mrs. Eva Hinshaw. The following guests were present: Mrs. George Culp, Mrs. Harry Richards, Mrs. John Burton, Misses Belva and Mabel Webster, and Carrie Moffatt.

SIZZLING HEAT IN MANY CITIES

But Hope of Relief Comes From the West.

CROPS MAY BE SAVED

Welcome Report Comes From Omaha of Rains and Coolness, and It is Hoped This May Extend to Atlantic coast—All Localities Still Suffering in the Stifling Heat.

Omaha, July 6.—The thermometer reached 107 at 3 p. m., yesterday, and broke all records. In the afternoon the heat wave was broken in Omaha and through the state, and good rains fell in various sections. From every indication the corn crop is safe. It rained in western Iowa as well as in Nebraska, and the cool wave and rain are sweeping eastward.

New York, July 6.—Today it seemed a hotter day than Wednesday to the multitudes at work in the built-up boroughs of the town, and the deaths and prostrations were more. The humidity was high, fluctuating near 80 per cent. The mercury reached 92. Today is the fifth in the heated spell, which considering the wide stretch of territory it covers, is one of the most intense and persistent in the annals of the weather bureau.

Des Moines topped the list of tophet towns with 106 in the shade. Kansas City and Oklahoma were blistered by 104 degrees; Dodge City and Chicago panted under 102. The maximum west, north, northeast, south and southwest, were all taller than that of this neighborhood. Pittsburgh had 98, Washington, 98, Boston, 94. At Helena, Mont., the lowest temperature was 41.

One hundred and sixty-two persons were prostrated by the heat in the greater city. There were twenty-one deaths reported to police headquarters attributed to the heat, and four cases of insanity. Three mad dogs were shot and there were two attempts at suicide.

Indianapolis, July 6.—An unprecedented condition exists in many counties of the state as a result of the extreme heat. Farmers have abandoned work in the fields because the heat is so intense that the horses cannot be worked to wagons and plows. The reflection from the sun-dried earth is added to the heat of the sun, and many horses have died in harness. There is hardly a county in which there have not been some deaths and prostrations from the heat. In many cities water is scarce and ice cannot be had. The corn crop is suffering from the protracted heat without rain.

Hammond, Ind., July 6.—Twelve dead, two dying, ten seriously injured and twenty heat prostrations is the grim record of twenty-four hours in the cities of the calumet region. Farmers have quit working horses, so many of them are dropping dead in the fields. Thermometers in farming districts register from 105 to 115 degrees.

Philadelphia, July 6.—Today saw no abatement of the heat. The temperature was 94. There were twenty-six deaths due to the heat.

DEATH OF DOWAGER QUEEN

Maria Pia of Portugal Ends Her Life in Italy.

Rome, July 6.—The dowager Queen Maria Pia, grandmother of former King Manuel, of Portugal, is dead at Turin. Death was due to uraemia. The queen dowager passed through many misfortunes. Her brother, King Humbert, of Italy, her son, King Carlos, and her grandson, the Portuguese crown prince, were assassinated, and her other grandson, Manuel, was deposed from the Portuguese throne.

Amelia Barr Hurt in Fall.

Newburgh, N. Y., July 6.—While Mrs. Amelia E. Barr, the aged authoress, of Cherrycroft, Cornwall, was passing from one room to another in her home, she caught her toe in a rug on the floor and was thrown heavily. She suffered numerous bruises and cut her face and head so that doctors who were called to attend her, were compelled to take eight stitches to close the wounds. It is not thought serious results will follow unless complications set in.

Wolgaist Did Well.

San Francisco, July 6.—Ad Wolgaist has left for Los Angeles, but will return here by July 10, and then start for Michigan. Moran and Charley Harvey left today for New York. From there Moran will sail for England. Jones and Wolgaist cleaned up handsomely on the bout. The victors and was $12,500, not including $500 expense money allowed. In addition Wolgaist and Jones won between them $8,105 betting on the bout. Also Jones bet $200 Wolgaist would stop the Britisher before the match was over.

Bad Fire at La Grange.

La Grange, Ind., July 6.—A $25,000 fire occurred at the Howe military school. Five firemen were overcome by the heat.

This campaign against unnecessary noises should take up the question of Capt. Hobson and his views on the war with Japan.

The harem skirts prove unpopular at Atlantic City. They were too much like the mantle of charity in covering up sins.

The Congressmen are spending so much time looking at the grand stand, that they forget all about the ball until it gets tangled up with their feet.

The absence of a Coronation ode from Alfred Austin caused comment, but if he can't get it printed elsewhere we will take it at space rates.

Gov. Dix of New York wrote 21 vetoes in two days. One would think that with such powerful hind legs he ought to run well.

Strange to say the senators who used to wear the Sugar trust tag in place of a boutonniere, have got to the point where they keep it inside their coats.

President Taft kissed a baby on his Fall River visit. After many hard knocks, he is gradually learning the elementary principles of statesmanship.

Now that the Coronation is over, King George must feel relieved to be able to put his tail coat in the closet, and walk down to the office in his business suit.

Many college students are now getting trips to Europe by feeding cattle on the freight boats. This is much preferable to serving course dinners to the Smart Set as summer hotel waiters.

The Democrats are hurrying to get their bill into public document form, before the tariff board has time to see how it looks in the light of business men's ledgers and workmen's wages.

From the way the story has been coming out, many people feel that Col. Roosevelt would have gotten as much satisfaction out of a ham sandwich as out of dining with Senator Lorimer.

It is strange that these college boys who break their backs rowing an oar in a boat race, are so fearful of blistering their hands when invited to wield a fork in a hay field.

The government report says that Steel common stock was originally all water, but Wall street even then could not get enough to quench the thirst of the lambs.

The Senate, it is said, will vote on reciprocity during July. The country wants Congress to act, and then lock up the capitol and hide the key until the first Monday in December.

The Corporation Bureau says that $150,000,000 was paid for promoting and underwriting the Steel trust. This must have paid for several families of the Four Hundred to go to Newport that summer.

Yale is not much on a boat race this year, but perhaps if you gave them a dory and some pretty girls they could row up to the picnic grounds before the luncheon was entirely consumed.

The express companies volunteer to lower rates. Some of the high perches are not so popular since it has been learned that Uncle Sam carries a gun reaching to the top of the tall timber.

The government closed the fiscal year with a cash balance of $33,000,000. This large sum will soon burn a hole in Congress' pocket and it was an awful mistake to let any of our legislators know about it.

Aviator Atwood flew 135 miles from Boston to New London, Ct., to see the boat race. Some people would rather have hitched up old Dobbin three days before and covered the distance in the buggy.

Some people favor substituting ice cream for explosives July 4th, and stomachache really seems more desirable than lock-jaw.

If all the energy devoted by Banker Morse to getting out of jail had been previously devoted to keeping out, he might still be joyfully riding around on his ice carts.

Henry James got a Harvard degree and now they should give another to the man who shall get up a guide book by which one can understand Mr. James' writings.

The alumni are perspiring at college commencements in plug hats and frock coats, while the student athlete running around in a pair of cotton drawers evidently has a clearer perception of the needs of our climate.

When a business concern invests a large sum of money in a handsome store and equipment for retail merchandising, the public feels a certain degree of confidence that the concern has goods worth examining. People argue that unless they had established a reputation for fair dealing and unless they had goods that they knew filled a need, they would not dare spend so much money.

Advertising, likewise, acts as a guarantee of substantial business character. When a firm spends money freely on this necessary form of salesmanship, the public concludes that it must have goods back of it that have demonstrated their worth, or the firm would not have set apart this sum of money for selling them through the newspapers.

A concern that does not advertise impresses the public as merely an experiment. The fact that it may have been in existence for a long term of years as a disqualification, indicating preference for old time methods. It takes advertising to prove that you have confidence in your goods.

The young married people down in Bartholomew county are becoming very persnickity. They object to be articles or the discharge of firearm many of their fathers and mothers. Police were guests at the numerous June weddings to put a stop to the old-fashioned charivaris.

An old city ordinance has been dug up which makes such unseemingly disturbance unlawful. It provides that it shall be unlawful for any person or persons to annoy newly married couples by the blowing of horns, and beating of pans, drums or other "belled" or "chivared" as we or anvils. If all reports be true there are some Rushville people who would be glad to have the protection of such an ordinance.

The first fortnight of July was once a period dreaded by the American small boy. To be sure, it was relieved by the turbulent and explosive joys of July 4th. But every other day, and often in the consecrated hours of the patriotic holiday, there was the hay to pitch and rake.

By one of the mystic dispensations of Providence, the small boy was put to work at the most severe tasks. While the older men were down on the barn floor, cooled by the fresh breezes from the wide doors, the youngster was relegated to an inferno on the upper hay mows, where he must stow hay under the eaves. With the air stuffed with hot dust from innumerable grass pollen, with no breath from out doors in that stifling furnace, with athletic men below gaining a certain satisfaction from covering him out of sight in forkfuls of hay, his condition was indeed deplorable.

But still there were alleviations. The can of iced water sweetened with New Orleans molasses, and stirred to vivid taste by ginger, was as nectar to the gods after that torrid experience.

Today the youth is apt to sit in the hammock while Swedish and Polish hands perform these tasks lightened by modern machinery. But a certain stern fiber of dauntless resolution that crept into his father's soul from these experiences may be missing in the son.

Indiana members of congress who went demagoguing around the state last year proclaiming that if it were not for Czar Cannon they would have a dollar a day pension law on the statute books inside of twenty-four hours, although they knew at the time that such a measure stood no chance whatever of endorsement by the democratic caucus, are now busy making more or less plausible explanations to their angered soldier constituents for their failure to make good now that they are sitting on the majority side in the house, says the Marion Chronicle. The house majority has been adjourning over Monday because it is the day on which a general pension bill could be called from the calendar. On Monday of last week a cog slipped and the house was in session. A republican member proposed that a general pension bill be called up. "I move we adjourn," cried Congressman Underwood of Alabama, democratic leader in the house, and adjournment was taken. Despite the fact that every line of legislation favoring the soldier was enacted by republican congresses, many republican veterans have been led astray by the buncombe that has been handed out by cheap politicians who have made them believe that if only a majority could be elected in the house that would be dominated by members from the states of the old Confederacy, a more liberal pension policy would be adopted. Gentlemen from Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina and Mississippi are running the house of representatives, and, peculiarly enough, nothing startling has happened to help the Union veterans.

EDITORIALETTES.

If you could only appreciate the fact that it is not the heat but the humidity that's causing all of the unpleasant feelings, then—

It really wouldn't make a bit of difference.

Statistics say—and they never lie 'yo' know—that the average family of the world is 4.6 We are led to believe that the .6 is huffy.

Shelbyville, the Reno of Indiana, never passes a day without a divorce suit filed or tried. There were only five on there yesterday.

We trust you will not neglect the fly. We are not going to put up any screens this year so that our supply will not be exhausted. For to be out of practice would be a crime.

S'likely that the whole country will be electrified (or electrocuted, both good words) when the eighty-seven wire trust men come to trial.

It was ninety-seven in the shade today, but, you know, it wasn't necessary to remain in the shade.

Why complain? We once worried about winter's backbone being so hardy and tenacious. Must be broken now.

Mrs. Mary Blessing of Shelbyville is dead and the newspapers say that she and her husband always lived happily. How otherwise?

"Kern Here on Flying Visit," says Indianapolis newspaper headline. Suppose he came over in a government airship?

LAP DOG CAUSES SCARE.

Several days ago, the Misses Pet, Mae, Laura and Dove Meredith went to Mays for a brief visit with L. G. Hall, taking with them a pet dog belonging to Margaret Herkless, their niece, who accompanied them. The dog frightened the passengers on the train when it ran through the cars, yelping and barking. The dog bit Mr. Herkless when the party arrived at Mays, but an examination showed that the dog was not mad.

AGED WOMAN DEAD.

Mrs. Margaret J. Dill, aged eighty-nine, died Tuesday at the home of her son, Charles in Knightstown. She had lived in that vicinity since girlhood and was well known. A daughter, Mrs. Asa Sampson of Logansport, and three sons, Marshall, Elmer and Charles, all of Knightstown, survive.

DAN LINGO FINED.

Daniel Lingo was fined one dollar and costs late Monday afternoon in Squire Kratzer's court for assault and battery on Mannel Dinwoody and as a result will serve eleven days in the county jail. Lingo, it will be remembered gave Policeman McAllister a long chase before he was captured and finally taken at Henderson.

HAILS FROM A STURDY RACE

In Independence Day Address Robert

Mansfield Refers to Ancestry of Many Years.

BIG CROWD AT ANDERSON PARK

Gratifying That Fourth of July is Still Celebrated in Old-Fashioned Manner.

The Anderson Morning Herald of yesterday says in part of the Fourth of July celebration there, when Robert Mansfield made the principal address:

One of the features of the celebration of Independence Day at Mounds park was the address of Robert E. Mansfield, U. S. consul-general at Zurich, Switzerland. It was the first time Mr. Mansfield has been heard as a speaker in this vicinity, but he was not a stranger to many in the large audience before him. He is an Indiana product, a native of Delaware county, as he explained in his address. He was connected with Muncie newspapers for some years before he became secretary of the Indiana Republican committee at the time Captain John K. Gowdy of Rushville, former U. S. consul general at Paris, was chairman of the State committee. After leaving the State committee Mr. Mansfield resumed newspaper work for a while and became interested in a daily newspaper at Marion. It was while he was there that he was appointed U. S. consul to Zanzibar and was promoted from Zanzibar to Lucerne, and from the Lucerne post to consul general at Zurich, in Switzerland. Mrs. Mansfield is a daughter of Captain and Mrs. Gowdy and is visiting her parents at Rushville. Mr. and Mrs. Mansfield will return to Switzerland in the autumn.

The speaker in the Mounds park exercises Tuesday was introduced by Edgar E. Hendee. Mr. Mansfield said in part:

"It is gratifying to know that there are still some places in Indiana where the Fourth of July is celebrated in the old-fashioned way, by the singing of patriotic songs and the reading of the Declaration of Independence; where the principles of patriotism are preached, tradition respected and the customs established by our ancestors observed. I have no time nor patience with the modern idea that it is old-fashioned to be patriotic.

The founders of the republic were wise in their generation, even to the selection of this particular season of the year for the enunciation of their Declaration of Independence; a season when all the luxuriant, the superb and sensuous beauties of nature greet us and contribute to our rejoicing. . . .

"It is cause for congratulation that we have with us here today, participating in these exercises, so many of the veterans of the most Titanic war in the history of the world—the war of the rebellion. It is difficult for us of the younger generation, who have never heard the clash of arms nor felt the shock of battle, to understand and appreciate the sacrifice made by these heroes. To us there is an awe in the sight of a cannon, a glory in the waving of a flag or the beating of a drum, and a novelty in a regiment at arms. To the men of '61 to '65 these things are sadly but proudly familiar. They have heard cannon thunder the menace of death, muffled drums beat the death toll, seen gay banners torn by hissing balls and brave regiments swept in shattered columns o'er fields that were won or lost. We read in history of the heroic deed which they performed, and marvel at their achievements. To Washington and the pioneer patriots we owe the establishment of the republic, but to Lincoln and these veterans we owe the preservation of the union, and the perpetuation of our institutions.

It is only by comparison that we can realize how young we are as a nation. We are only a few generations from the pioneers who laid the foundations of the republic and created the heritage which we enjoy. We can perhaps appreciate our national youthfulness by a comparison of the American republic with the confederation of Switzerland, that land of legend and romance—of William Tell and Arnold Winkelried, the oldest of modern republics, and perhaps the best example of true democracy the world has ever known. . . .

"Coming down to a later date, in this great northwest, where progress has been most rapid in recent years, villages have grown into cities numbering their inhabitants by the millions. And in the far west, where the mines have given up their hoarded wealth, in the yet warm lair of the Rock Mountain bear, there resounds the ceaseless thunder of the world's greatest bullion mills.

"My grandfather died in Delaware county, Indiana, in recent years at the ripe old age of ninety-nine and a half years. My uncle, my mother's brother, was the first male white child born in Delaware county. My grandfather was present at Greenville, O., when General William Henry Harrison concluded the treaty of peace with the great Indian warrior chief, Tecumseh. He voted at a majority of the presidential elections held in the United States and his memory extended over a period covering the greater portion of the history of the Republic. A few generations like this man could reach back and clasp hands with the first immigrant of the western world, Christopher Columbus."

See Me at Poe's Jewelry Store

SOME people think we've gone crazy over this Big Ben proposition. We'll tell you—we've been in the jewelry business for 45 years. In those 45 years we've handled about every kind of alarm clock made, but we never have seen one that can touch Big Ben for looks, accuracy or strength.

We run and regulate every one we sell. If you have him cleaned every other year there is no telling how long he will last.—we keep him in the window; look at him when you walk by.

This is the clock they are advertising in the big magazines.

Social Events

Concerning the wedding of Miss Lois Peck, formerly a Rushville resident, and Blaine Cooley, well known here, the Connersville News says:

Blaine Cooley, the popular clerk at the Ashworth drug store, and Miss Lois Peck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Peck, living west of the city, secured a marriage license Tuesday evening and were married early Wednesday morning at the home of the Rev. W. H. Clark. A few friends were present at the ceremony, which was beautiful though simple, and which was performed by the Rev. Mr. Clark. Immediately after the close of the holy rites the bride and groom left on a wedding trip. They are expected to return in a few days and will live for the present at least, in a cozy home west of the city. Mr. Cooley is very popular with a large circle of friends and his bride is one of the prettiest and best liked of all the young ladies in her neighborhood. All who know these estimable young people unite in wishing them much happiness.

The storm which swept over eastern Rush county Tuesday afternoon also did considerable damage to a small strip of territory in Hancock county. At the same time damage was done by a storm in Bartholomew county.

Amusements

The Palace will have a Vitagraph, "The Welcome of the Unwelcome" and "Rival Brothers Patriotism," an extra good drama. Charles VanCamp will sing the illustrated song.

The Portola will show as the first film a Biograph drama, "How She Triumphed." The picture is said to be a good one. The Vitagraph, "The Derelict Reporter," is a story of newspaper life and deals with the adventures of a reporter who wins in the end after a hard fight.

Ed C. Hayes, the musical monologist and "stunt" artist will make his first appearance at the Vaudet this evening. Hayes is said to be good in his act and comes highly recommended to the management. "Two Plucky Girls," an American drama, is one of the pictures on tonight's program. It is said to be a thrilling story of adventure which has never been duplicated in the moving picture world. "The Postmistress" is a sensational drama. It deals with the trials of a woman who officiates in a man's position and the manner in which she overcomes the difficulties. It is a Lux picture.

CHAPTER I.

That was a rather peculiar crime, the robbing of my Uncle Abner's safe. It was cleverly planned, opportunely timed and successfully executed. It was a good haul, too. Forty thousand dollars in crisp coin of the realm is pretty high pay for almost any criminal for a few hours' work and risk, and that is what the perpetrator got out of it.

You will notice that I said "criminal." I did that to distinguish it from the operation of a gang of thieves; for as it turned out it was the work of a single individual and not the combination of effort of a coterie. That made it still more difficult to solve. As a chain is no stronger than its weakest link, so is the cunning of a combination of men no keener than the wits of its dullest member. That is why conspiracies generally come to grief—somebody turns out to be weak. In the matter of which I am speaking there were as many baffling points as there are to a hedgehog, and for a time it seemed impregnable. As for the sleuth hounds of the police, they came up to it with caution, smelled about it discreetly and then drew away, looking wise, to ponder over it, and for all I know are looking wise and pondering yet. But with William LeDuc the case was different.

LeDuc had been something of a friend of mine ever since we were schoolboys together, and he did really brilliant work on the case. Everything conjured up by the human mind is capable of human solution if we go about it right, and LeDuc found the way. Just because a dog is helpless before a bristling porcupine it is no sign that all animals are. The wild cat isn't. He is too quick for the bristler. He feints him out of his defensive posture by lightning play and eventually gets him by the unprotected nose—which is the beginning of the end of the problem. Just what LeDuc did has never been made public up to this time for the reason that none but he or I am competent to give the inner particulars of the running down of the thief, and up to this time neither of us has cared to tell. But I feel that I must do so now.

That I happened to know more than anybody else about certain incidents connected with the affair and was able to supply LeDuc with the proofs of guilt was due to the fact that I lived with Uncle Abner at the time the crime took place. I, also, was the one who found him lying bound and unconscious. Also it was myself who reported matters to the police and introduced LeDuc to my uncle. As for the time when the burglary took place, I happened to be away from home, having stayed at a hotel in the business district quite a few miles from where I lived.

And now at the outset I am going to emphasize one fact. While it is an unpleasant thing for me to do so, I am going to tell everything I know regarding this crime. I am going to spare nobody's feelings, faults or reputations. That I have not done so before was because of a reason which will be apparent when all the other facts are known. But now that a certain event has happened I feel free to make everything known.

In writing this account I have thought best to do so chronologically when possible. Therefore, I must go somewhat into matters which preceded and were more or less directly connected with the crime in order that the motive may be shown and that there may be the proper perspective. To do this I must tell more or less about people not absolutely connected with the burglary, but who are necessary to the narrative by reason of their propinquity. However, they are simply the shading and side lights that go to make up the picture. And while LeDuc may disappear for considerable periods in the telling, the mistake should not be made of thinking he is nowhere around. That is what he did in the actual ferreting out of the case, and that is what misled the criminal. But when his fine Italian hand did appear at the finish, it wore a glove of mail.

Right at this point I find myself somewhat at a loss to decide just where to begin the recital. This is for the reason that I am not a writer trained in the art of building up a mystery with such skill that it stands intact until the time comes to demolish it; when with one deft blow the keystone is removed and the whole fabric comes down with a crash. Therefore all I can hope to do is to simply and plainly outline the characters which seem to me to be pertinent to a full understanding of conditions, and then go on and relate events as they happened. Perhaps I had better begin with a brief description of Uncle Abner, his peculiarities and meannesses.

When you look at that last sentence again you will begin to understand that I meant it when I said I was going to spare nobody. Neither do I believe any one will think as I proceed that I am attempting to spare my own feelings. What an idiot I was! I think when the fates were making the world's supply of fools, after they had constructed many others, they broke the mold. Having turned out a perfect specimen there was no use of experimenting further.

I have called Uncle Abner mean and peculiar, but that description is insipid. It is about as adequate as describing Satan as not being a pleasant person. Of all the cold-blooded men I ever met, Abner Halliday had the most frog-like temperature. I once had a dream which will illustrate my life-long impression of him. It happened when I was spending a year at a technical school learning practical mechanics prior to entering college, and it was brought about by a particularly heartless and thoroughly uncalled for letter which he had written me. I dreamed that I had seen him dissected at a clinic and that his veins were filled with liquid air instead of warm red corpuscles. And when it came to the region of his heart they found its place occupied by a toadstool. He was long, lean, miserly and rich. As to the amount of his wealth, I had little knowledge except from a boast he once made to me and which I was inclined to believe at the time.

I happened incidentally to remark that he must be a pretty wealthy man, and he turned to me with that cunning leer of his—a leer that had the cunning of a fox and the relentlessness of a wolf. "I suppose you know how far it is from here to the heart of the city," he grinned. I told him that it was eight miles as the crow flies.

"And about 80 rods. Now, you listen to me, young gadabout. If I should turn all my money into American dollars and put them side by side, edges touching, remember, they'd reach from here to the city hall."

"Which is a long ways," I assented meekly. He grinned again.

"And I'll tell you where else they would reach. They'd reach to the chambers of the judges; they'd reach to the private office of the assessor, and they'd reach to the heart of any public official I wanted, then to which is the reason I desire them. Understand, now, young jackanapes?"

"Yes," I returned wearily, disgusted by his contempt for all human honesty. Then I went away and left him, feeling more resentful than ever that I must tell him in and out as the cashier of a soulless corporation for $2,000 a year, and then out of it pay my uncle pretty near first-class hotel rates for my board and lodgings. At times his browbeating and insults fairly sickened me of life; yet I swallowed them with the resignation of a schoolboy who takes quinine as a condition to his being allowed to go fishing. Oh, dead men's shoes! How we will dance until we fall for the prospect of wearing them.

Now a few words about the house we lived in.

It was a rookery. Large and rambling, it had degenerated from a handsome, well-groomed suburban home to a hulking, tattered demoralized outcast.

"If I Should Turn All My Money Into American Dollars, They'd Reach From Here to the City Hall."

amidst respectability. It was bruised and battered. The spine of its roof already had a curvature; the paint hung from it in shreds, and ragweeds surrounded it. Internally it was nearly hollow. Year by year Uncle Abner, clutching his dollars, sat by and watched it run down as steadily as a clock that is never rewound; prideless of himself and of all belonging to him save his money. And whenever he did spend a few dollars upon repairs his cheerfulness was that of one who gives a surgeon his fee for extracting his vermiform appendix. Necessity, so grinding and imperative that further neglect would prove fatal, was the only condition that could loosen the Gordian knot which bound his money bags.

I never opened the heavy door that led from the group of magnificent century old oaks, the branch ends of which stroked the gray house like caressing hands, without a feeling of disgust and hot shame. The lower floors were unfurnished save for the kitchen, the dining room and the room for the housekeeper. Barring those portions it was as barren as a ship's empty hold. For years Mrs. Tebbets had been the housekeeper of the place, doing all the household work and never to our knowledge receiving company, and almost never leaving the premises. The upstairs portion of the house was also bare of furniture save for my uncle's and my apartments. His quarters consisted of a large, sparsely furnished room running the length of the front of the house, with an alcove in connection, my own sleeping room and den being adjacent thereto. That Uncle Abner continued to live amidst this shameful waste of handsomely designed rooms and broad natural grounds, was about the only piece of extravagance I ever knew him to indulge himself in. However, I could partially account for it in two ways. In the first place he had come into possession of the premises through some sort of a hocus-pocus swap; had secured them for a song, won the resulting lawsuit, and then left the former owner to whistle for the song; and in the second he had a real and abiding fondness for trees and grass. Trees and grass, however, do not require repairs.

Now as to his associates. There were only three people in the world whom he did not seem to have a natural aversion for. These were myself, whom he tolerated as a sort of licensed and necessary evil; Bruce Halliday, my second cousin, whose happy-go-lucky exploits he would sometimes chuckle over, and Clare Winton, another distant cousin of mine from a different branch of the family. But, it was practically impossible to know Clare and not love her a little at least; and it was his affection for her, combined with his fondness for nature, that made me realize that he was a human being after all. Bruce used to say to me privately that if Uncle Abner was the crab apple of the family tree, Clare was certainly the peach, but I always preferred to regard her as the jewel. I would not liken her to a diamond as I would Mrs. Dace, who scintillates and dazzles, but rather to a perfect pearl whose beauty is soft and emanates from deep within.

While it was easy enough to account for his fondness for Clare, I never could quite understand what a man of his instincts saw about a prodigal like Bruce to pat on the back, good looking and agreeable though he is. And it puzzled me almost as much to notice that Clare, who is high-minded and as sweet and wholesome as fresh milk, would so readily overlook things in my cousin of which I knew she instinctively disapproved. One day I spoke to her about it. I good naturedly charged her with being very fond of him, and she admitted it with audacious sang froid.

"Of course I am. Everybody is—everything is. Children climb all over him and stray dogs follow him home. Why shouldn't they if he pets them?" I expostulated. "But he is so obnoxious—I might even say notorious—about his—well, I will call them 'financial peculiarities.' He doesn't care who knows about them." She answered me as pertly as a sparrow.

"That's just what I like about him. Bruce doesn't know there is such a thing as underhandness."

So that's the way some immaculate women have of sticking up for tarnished men. It seems to be one of the mysteries of the female mental equipment which is incomprehensible to the male mind. But while I always liked Bruce, we are of somewhat different temperaments. I am not a purist in any sense of the word, but I believe in discretion. Personally I prefer a person who does the indiscreet thing discreetly to one who does the discreet thing indiscreetly. And that is one way in which he and I differ. Neither do I admit that it is hypocrisy on my part—merely discretion. It has always seemed to me that when two people's characters are equal, that whatever advantage the one may have over the other rests with the one who has the better reputation.

Also Bruce was usually up to his ears in trouble of one of two kinds—financial or feminine. But no matter which it was, he always managed to slip through it like an eel through oil. He is a broker by trade. Also, he speculates on his own account, and part of the time is floating like a bubble on the top wave of prosperity and the rest of the time swimming for dear life in the succeeding trough. It was a good deal as he himself once put it, when he had planned to feed a few of us a week in advance:

"You had better put a sandwich in your pocket, boys, for life is uncertain. As you know, it is turkey with me one day and feathers the next, and you have got to take your chance as to which you will get when you dine with me. But come on just the same. If it is turkey it will be the biggest one in the market, and if it's the other it will be feathers in our caps anyhow."

In spite of yourself you can't cherish anything against a man like that.

I never criticized him to any one save Clare, and only to her incidentally and openly the same as we criticized other things that were in common between us. She understood perfectly that there was no animus back of my words, and I would not have cared particularly if she had told him all I said. As a general proposition she would agree with me, but not always. I remember once when she crushed the rose which she had been caressing into a shapeless pulp with one convulsive squeeze at some careless remark of mine concerning his improvidence.

"Did you ever happen to notice where Bruce's clothes show the first signs of wear?" she asked defiantly. I admitted that I had not.

"Then I will tell you. It is at the flap of his right-hand trouser's pocket where he carries the loose money that he loans and gives away." So you see her action signified nothing except another instinctive desire on her part to fly to his defense and cover his sins of extravagance by the mantle of his charities. And, of course, against sentiment like that logic is useless.

Then, too, when it comes to his little love affairs Bruce is certainly a pachyderm. You could shoot him as full of Cupid's arrows as you could thrust a human pin cushion full of needles, and the result would be the same in each case. An unfortunate affair of the heart affects some people not unlike a mosquito. It annoys them for a few moments, and then another mosquito comes and the first one is forgotten. With others it gets under the skin like a "chigger"—fester and torments and will not be scratched out. And there is where Bruce and I differ again. He is of the first class, while I am of the chigger-bitten variety.

Clare nearly always came to see us upon Sunday afternoons. We would usually hear her whistling as she came up the walk when she was still quite a ways distant. Clare can sing like an angel, but she much prefers to whistle like the devil. She squeaks and trebles and flats with her lips in a pucker and her chin aslant, and the discord she creates is shocking. But she never gets discouraged, and would rather shrill a few false notes through her puckered lips than open her round throat and let notes pour forth that would drive a prima donna to glaring envy. Into the house she would come by means of her private key with a fife of her lips and a hat-a-tat-tat of her feet on the uncarpeted stairs, until a final hollow thump would announce her arrival at the portals of my uncle's inner sanctuary. Thereupon I would arise to a military "attention" and my uncle to a creaking resemblance of uprightness as she threw open the door to reveal herself, sinking to the floor with skirts spread in an exaggerated curtsy of the olden days. Up to uncle she would go with a ridiculous kiss upon the bald spot of his head, and then settle light as a puff-ball in the window seat and commence to chatter. Five minutes of that would put her out of breath, after which she would be content to settle down to ordinary conversation as she sewed on the buttons missing from his garments, or trimmed the edges of his ever-frayed collars. For while Mrs. Tebbets was employed to do all this, Clare always reserved those tasks for herself and jealously insisted upon retaining her prerogatives. Perhaps an hour later, if the weather was fitting, I would manage to catch her eye with a significant glance and would then go down to a rustic seat beneath the big oaks. Presently she would join me.

While I was not really in love with her, neither was I with anybody else. I liked her exceedingly, realized that she would make a well high ideal wife, and sometimes used to speak to her about love matters. I would be half in fun and half in earnest.

"Clare," I would say, "you don't seem to care for any men but Bruce and myself, and I can't believe that you and he are in earnest in your brazen flirtations. In the first place, he has no more seriousness about him than a jumping-jack, and in the second I cannot conceive of a girl with your ideals loving a man of his peculiar financial practices and alley-cat habits. Outside of his more or less respectable club he has no more fixed place of abode than a balloon, and I don't believe he would be any more content to settle down than one."

She would toss her head. "That is because the poor fellow has no home to allure him. Just you wait until he gets married. If he wins the right wife he will settle down so hard that you can hear the echo."

I would wave my hands in protest. "But he speculates upon the board—bets, and all that, and while I do not consider such things as particularly depraved, I know that you are utterly against them. Besides, he is a financial humorist. How could he support a wife in the dreary, moneyless periods?"

"I'm sure I don't know—that would be his end of the bargain. But I do know that if he had a wife who would save what he throws away when he is prosperous they would never come to want. And I am not sure, after all, but that it is better to have a lot of money part of the time and none the rest than to have only a little all the time."

That would quiet me for a time. I had to depend entirely upon my salary, for being under heavy bonds I could not have speculated had I cared to and still retained my position if the fact became known. But by certain economies I had managed to hide away a few hundreds for emergencies, and in addition to that I had in the savings bank $5,000 which had come to me from my father's estate. That, however, I regarded a good deal as a trust fund which was to be left unused except in case of last resort. So I would take another tack and try and impress her with the greater virtue of ultimate achievement through industry and economy rather than by mowing your way through the ranks of your fellow men. From her quietness I would think she was becoming converted until of a sudden she would give a fidget.

"There he comes now, down the walk back of us," she would assert without even a glance around. And sure enough it would be Bruce, a cigar in his mouth and a bundle as big as a peck measure wrapped up in paper under his arm. I always thought my physical senses were particularly alert, but she would invariably announce his coming before I knew he was within gunshot. Hearing, intuition, instinct or sixth sense, I know not what it was, but at times it struck me as almost uncanny. Up to us he would come as most strolling with a smile and audacious "Hello, little sweetheart," and a nod and an off-hand "Howdy, old man," to me; and standing before us with his feet wide apart would grin at her like a good-natured puppy. Then I would see Clare's eyes begin to light up.

"What is it this time, Bruce?" she would half rasp excitedly. With a studied deliberation that would keep her in squirming suspense he would gradually open the bundle and take it on high. Then suddenly he would pour a pailful of roses, carnations or violets over her head and send them tumbling into her lap and down on the grass in a waterfall of fragrance. And at that she would utter a little cry and go down upon her knees as she gathered them up by the handful, scolding him like a magpie for his extravagance, and stopping after every few words for a rapturous smell of each captured treasure. And that would be my reward for my lecture on the sin of extravagance.

Then, regardless of my presence, he would sit down and begin to make love to her. Nor would he do this in the way that any other civilized man would go about such a thing, but openly and notoriously in the ill-buster fashion in which he did every thing. She always seemed helpless before his extravagant compliments, while, as for myself, I would watch him in silence unable to make up my mind whether I was amused or disgusted. After he got tired of that he would insist that she go with him over to the boulevard where they could sit on a bench and pick out an automobile from those going by, such as he was going to purchase for her especial benefit. At first she would demur, but would finally say, "All right, if Tom will go, too." Whereat he would laugh and say to me with an audacious wink:

"Oh, Tom doesn't care to go. He would rather loaf up in his den and read a book than go over there and sit in the dust, wouldn't you, Tom?" In reply I would bow low and say "certainly," with a sarcasm that would have shriveled any other living human being, but at which he would only laugh again and straightway march her off. And that, of course, would be the last of them for that day so far as I was concerned.

As I said before, I was not in love with her; I did not think that he was more than half in earnest and therefore was not jealous. But it always left me feeling sort of disgusted. I don't believe it is in the male nature for any man to witness a woman whom he likes tacitly accepting the advances of a man other than himself without wishing that he had horns. He may not particularly want the woman himself, but the sight of it breeds a sneaking desire in him to go out and hook something.

the fact that they are selling large quantities of "sage tea," such as was used by our grandmothers for promoting the growth of their hair, making it fluffy and beautiful and restoring its natural color.
The demand for this well-known herb for this purpose has been so great that one manufacturer has taken advantage of the fact and has placed on the market an ideal "sage tea," containing nothing but a valuable remedy for dandruff and scalp itching and restoring the color of the hair, making it fluffy and beautiful and restoring its natural color.
The manufacturers of this remedy authorize druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.
This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

LOSES LIFE SAVING WOMEN

William N. Doty Is Drowned In Irish Lake.

HEAD OF CHEMICAL COMPANY

He Had Been on a Camping Trip With Family and Friends and In Attempting to Save Two Young Women Who Had Ventured Too Far, Was Himself Lost.

Warsaw, Ind., July 6.—William N. Doty, of South Omaha, Neb., was drowned in Irish lake, ten miles northeast of Warsaw. He went to the lake in an auto from Muncie several days ago, and had been in camp with his family and six friends from Muncie at the lake. While his friends were enjoying a swim he went to the rescue of two young women who had ventured too far, and was drowned himself. The other members of the party hurried to his rescue, and Albert Brenner arrived as he sank for the last time.

Mr. Doty was forty-four years old, and leaves a widow and little son, who were in the party. He was head of the Doty Bros. Chemical company.

HE WANTS A WIFE

Peru Man Seeks Aid From Fort Wayne Postmaster.

Fort Wayne, Ind., July 6.—Andrew J. Simpson, Peru, Ind., is making lots of money, and he wishes to get married. He confided his desire to Postmaster R. B. Hanna, in the following letter:

"July 2, 1911, to Postmaster. Give this address to some girl and tell her to write to me. I am wanting a wife.
I am making a lot of money, and when I come up I will pay you for your trouble. Will look for a letter next Saturday. Good-by."

Then follows the signature, "Andrew J. Simpson, Peru, Ind.," but the letter bore the Wabash postmark.
Postmaster Hanna says he cannot undertake to act as matrimonial agent.

A YOUNG HERO

Saves Companions From Drowning In Eel River.

Bowling Green, Ind., July 6.—After Kyle Weidner, one of a party of three twelve-year-old boys bathers, had almost drowned in Eel river, and had dragged a second boy, Emmet Boyer, under the water, the third and smallest boy sprang into the deep channel and managed to get them out alive.
There is talk of placing the case before the Carnegie hero fund commission.

Interesting Wedding Tour.
Marion, Ind., July 6.—Mr. and Mrs.
J. Wood Wilson have returned to this city, their home, after a six months' wedding trip abroad. They visited Egypt, the Holy Land, Turkey, Greece, Italy, France, Switzerland, Austria, and Germany. In Italy Mr. Wilson's chauffeur met them with his touring car, in which they traveled over the continent. Mr. Wilson is vice-president and one of the largest stockholders in the Marion National bank.
Mrs. Wilson was formerly Miss Lillian Pampell, of Wabash.

A Compromise Agreement.
Indianapolis, July 6.—As a result of a compromise agreement between Governor Marshall and the officials of the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad of Indiana, the suit instituted by the governor several months ago to enjoin the company from realizing on action to mortgage its Indiana property, the old Chicago, Cincinnati & Louisville railroad, to a New York trust company for $40,000,000 was dismissed in the Cass circuit court.

Noisy Fourth at Kokomo.
Kokomo, Ind., July 6.—Despite the efforts in official circles to have a soft pedal Independence day, there was no appreciable diminution in noise and smoke. A city ordinance prohibited all cannon crackers over five inches in length, the placing of explosives on street car tracks, and unusual explosives, but the ordinance was generally disregarded.

Brothers Drowned.
Petersburg, Ind., July 6.—Homer
Benjamin, age eighteen, and his brother, Lester, age sixteen, sons of W. A.
Benjamin, of Petersburg, were drowned in White river, five miles northeast of here. They were bathing in the river. The bodies have not yet been recovered.

Shot While Plowing.
Indianapolis, July 6.—Charles Kohseldt, employed as a caretaker on the country estate of Albert Lieber, was mysteriously shot while plowing corn in the lowlands along White river.
The bullet is thought to have been fired by campers along the river, and the shooting probably was an accident.

Laid Cornerstone of High School.
Bedford, Ind., July 6.—Among the interesting features of the Fourth in this city was the laying of the cornerstone of the $125,000 high school building. The ceremonies were in the charge of the Masonic lodge.

WORE A POLICE-MAN'S UNIFORM

Swindler in New York Rounded Up Finally.

New York, July 6.—Just as a man dressed in full policeman's uniform was coming out of August Secker's hotel, George Engle, who runs a butcher shop on Barclay street, happened to be passing. He got a good look at the policeman, and ran over to where Traffic Policeman John Moran was helping to untangle the snarl of trucks usually to be found at that corner.
"There's '737' over there," shouted Engle. "He's the phony cop that's been getting checks cashed for a year.
He got into me once and I want him arrested."

Moran arrested the man and took him to police headquarters. Secker and Engle came along as complaining witnesses. The former said that the man had just tried to get him to cash a thirty-five dollar check. At headquarters the man was quizzed. He said his name was Louis Lewis, and that he lived with his wife and several children at 327 East 66th street.

The police have been looking for "737" for a long time. More than fifty complaints have been filed at headquarters about him, and for a time the real policeman who bore the number was in hot water constantly. He was entirely innocent of wrongdoing, but it took months for him to convince the authorities that someone else was using his number to defraud.

Member of Imperial Yacht Club.
Kiel, July 6.—A local newspaper says that the Kaiser overrode customary formalities in making J. P.
Morgan a member of the Imperial Yacht club. The club is one of the most exclusive in Europe, and the names of aspirants for membership must be posted for weeks in the clubhouse, the ministry of marine and elsewhere. One blackball excludes a candidate. The Kaiser waived every precedent. He simply entered the club and announced, "we have a new member, Mr. Pierpont Morgan, of New York."

Breaks Vow and Ends Life.
Carmi, Ill., July 6.—Ernest Ridenour, after vainly attempting to quit strong drink, took his life by hanging.
He broke a promise and brooded over the failure to keep his vow.

SESSION CLOSES ABOUT AUG. 1.

Senate Is at Last Getting Down to Business.

NEAR TO AN AGREEMENT

Senators Are Getting Tired of the Prolonged Sitting and Will Probably Reach An Agreement Soon to Fix a Date for Final Vote on the Canadian Reciprocity Bill.

Washington, July 6.—There is a general disposition in the senate to shape the business so as to bring about an adjournment of congress not later than August 1. In line with this plan the senate has unanimously agreed to meet an hour earlier each day and to remain in session seven hours. The hour of meeting was expressly fixed for 11 o'clock, but the understanding as to remaining in session until 6 o'clock in the evening was implied.

It is likely that within a few days
Senator Penrose, chairman of the finance committee, will ask the senate to fix the date by unanimous consent for a vote on the reciprocity bill. The insurgent senators declare that they have no intention to obstruct and with a few speeches yet to come, they will be ready for a vote on the Canadian bill. There is a feeling around the senate that that body was nearer to an agreement for a vote than has been generally believed.

Senator LaFollette will likely occupy more time than any of the other insurgents. The estimates of the time he will require to deliver his speech vary from three days to a week. The senator himself is non-committal as usual. But while his speech may cover several days, it is not likely to be continuous. The senator from Wisconsin will probably run the speech in sections, and there will be time between each installment for other senators to edge in, and thus no time will be lost.

Senator Burton made a notable speech in support of the reciprocity bill. He was subjected to a fusilade of questions and his speech occupied more than three hours.

Representative Underwood, chairman of the ways and means committee, of the house, conferred with the leaders. He told them that the house cotton bill would be ready for the senate in about two weeks. He stated further that the ways and means committee would not remain idle. Confirming what Speaker Clark said, Chairman Underwood said that the committee would immediately take up the other schedules of the Payne-Al-dritch law and revise them and send them over to the senate. This work will go on, he says, as long as congress is in session.

AGED RESIDENT OF ARLINGTON DEAD

Mrs. Mary A. Seward, 67 Years Old, Passed Away Last Night at Her Home There.

HIP WAS FRACTURED TWICE

Mrs. Mary A. Seward, 67 years old, widow of the late Oliver Seward, died last night about 11:30 o'clock at her home in Arlington. Mrs. Seward fell on October 11, 1910, breaking her right hip. She had almost recovered from this when she fell again two weeks ago last Monday, breaking the bone again. Since this time she had been in a serious condition and complications arose causing her death.

Mrs. Seward was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Cowger and was born March 22, 1844. She had been a resident of this county for sixty years and was a well known woman. Mrs. Seward was a member of the Arlington M. E. church. She is survived by three children, Mrs. Stella Davis of Arlington, Charles and Rufus of Bridgeport, Ill.; also one half-sister, Mrs. Norm Conde of this city, two half-brothers, Will Seward of Seymour, and Francis Seward of Greensburg; ten grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

The funeral services will be held at the Arlington M. E. church Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Burial will take place in Arlington East Hill cemetery.

ALLATION WINS THE TROT

Sorrel Stallion in Gosnell Stable Takes Race at Canton, O.

Allation, the beautiful sorrel stallion, which has won so many prizes at local horse shows and in other cities and counties, won the trot at the Canton, Ohio, races yesterday, according to a telegram received by Frank Wilson this morning. The horse's best mile was in 2:21 1/4. Allation was formerly in the Quay stable at the fair ground and was trained and shown by Scott Branum. When Mr. Quay died, his stable was sold at auction in Chicago and Allation was purchased by Curt Gosnell and another man. He has been trained at Riverside park all season. Mr. Gosnell has several other promising horses in his stable.

WEED CUTTING TIME HERE

Should be Destroyed Before Going to Seed.

The cutting of the weeds of various kinds along the roadsides and other public places is at its height, and as the majority of the trouble breeding pests are at the seeding period their care should be worthy of some consideration. While the majority of farmers and property owners along public highways keep their weeds cut and prevent the growing of any seeds to start another crop on the following year, there are some who give no time nor thought to that particular part of the country's welfare. The thistle is the worst pest of them all, and great care is being used in the extermination of the weed from the local communities.

CHESTER IS SUED.

Connersville News: A New York dispatch, appearing in a late issue of a Cincinnati newspaper reveals the working of some discord in the household of George Randolph Chester, well known in Connersville as the husband of the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Rothermel, and to all the reading public as the author of "Get Rich Quick Wallingford" and other stories of clever fiction. His wife is suing him for a divorce.
